

Sexual Health Advisory

In an effort to provide the best care for our patients, we regularly review and evaluate consumer products to assist our patients in making informed choices about their health. A new sexual health product, Divine 9, is now available for:

✓	Women of all ages, experiencing vaginal dryness, looking for a safe and effective lubrication product.
✓	Sexually active women, not in a long-term monogamous relationship, who are concerned with protection against sexually transmitted diseases.
✓	Women diagnosed with HPV or cervical dysplasia, looking for the most effective ways to reduce the risk of virus transmission to and from sex partners.

Some Key Points on HPV Infections and Cancer

- HPV is difficult to detect and spreads easily. Women have up to a 75% chance of being infected by HPV sometime in their lives.
- The CDC reports that women, once sexually active, can be infected by as many as 100 strains of HPV. They estimate that 10% of U.S. women aged 50 to 59 are infected with high-risk HPV.
- Certain types of HPV (high-risk strains) have been proven to be the cause of most cervical cancer, many throat and anal cancers, and genital warts.
- We offer Gardasil® and Cervarix® vaccines. However they only effective for women who have not been previously exposed to high-risk HPV.

About Divine 9 Personal Lubricants

Divine 9 is a premium personal lubricant formulated for a natural, intimate feel while minimizing skin irritation. Divine 9 uses natural sea-algae extracts to protect and moisturize the skin and is fragrance, paraben and glycerin-free, non-staining, and latex safe.

Divine 9 has been independently tested by the National Cancer Institute and was found to block HPV transmission in a laboratory setting. Clinical trials at McGill University Medical School showed participants using Divine 9 during each sexual encounter had a reduced likelihood of contracting a new HPV infection.

The potential HPV prevention benefits combined with its pleasant feel and hypoallergenic formula lead us to recommend Divine 9 for all our patients.
